How to grow a potato — Instruction for Children's Class D

Equipment:

- 1 seed potato from Elham Garden Society
- 1 x egg box
- Hammer and nail—ADULT USE ONLY
- 1 x builder's bucket
- A trowel
- Compost or soil

Put the potatoes into an egg carton, with their eyes at the top. The eyes of a potato are the little indents or pits you see on their skins. Leave them in a cool, dry place or windowsill for about 4 weeks until they grow shoots. This process is called 'chitting'.

Ask an adult to make some small holes (about 1cm.) in the base of the bucket, using a hammer and a nail. Once chitting is complete, add the compost or soil up to one-third of the bucket.

Very gently push the potato into the compost with the shoots pointing up. Add a little more soil to cover the potato. Water your potato every three days.

As the plants grow, shoots will appear out of the compost. When this happens cover them with more soil, so they are just buried. Add more compost every time the shoots appear, until the bucket is completely full. The plants will continue to grow and grow.

Place the bucket outside where it can get plenty of light. Keep the compost well-watered, especially if the weather gets hot.

If any potatoes appear make sure you cover them again with compost.

If you leave them in the sunlight they will turn green and green potatoes are poisonous.
